

W-9 WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27
2:00 P.M. – 5:15 P.M.

First Mondays Live Podcast – A Recap of the U.S. Supreme Court's 2017 Term and Its Most Anticipated Opinions

This is a live recording of the popular Supreme Court podcast First Mondays, hosted by Dan Epps and Ian Samuel. The First Mondays podcast is an entertaining weekly playbook about the happenings in the U.S. Supreme Court, and includes an in-depth conversation about the week's opinions, oral arguments, and other Court intrigue. Perfectly timed, the program takes place right after the last week of the Supreme Court's 2017 Term and includes discussion and analysis about the Court's most anticipated decisions. Following the podcast, other former Supreme Court clerks join the hosts in a lively discussion about the Court.

What You'll Learn:

1. Highlights from the Supreme Court's 2017 Term
2. What to expect in the Court's 2018 Term
3. Insights and analysis about the Supreme Court

Presented by: Appellate Practice Section

Chairs: Nicholas D. Acedo, Struck Love Bojanowski & Acedo, PLC
Eric M. Fraser, Osborn Maledon PA

Faculty: Dan Epps, Associate Professor of Law, Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., former law clerk, Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy
Hon. Andrew D. Hurwitz, Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, former law clerk, Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart
Hon. Ruth McGregor, former Chief Justice of the Arizona Supreme Court, former law clerk, Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor
Ian Samuel, Climenko Fellow and Lecturer on Law, Harvard Law School, Cambridge, MA, former law clerk, Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia

© All Rights Reserved. The opinions of the faculty expressed in their written materials and oral presentations are not necessarily those of the State Bar of Arizona.